ORDER

Presently before the Court is Defendants' motion to transfer venue (ECF No. 12), filed on October 13, 2016. Plaintiff filed a response (ECF No. 13) on October 28, 2016, and Defendants filed a reply (ECF No. 16) on November 21, 2016.

I. Introduction

This case arises out of an insurance dispute between Plaintiff, Arlene L. Lizaso, and Defendants, Provident Life and Casualty Insurance Company (PLC), Provident Life and Accident Insurance Company (PLA), and Unum Group (Unum). PLC issued Plaintiff an insurance policy while she was living and employed in New York as a registered nurse. Based on an injury claim brought by Plaintiff, Defendants began paying disability payments to Plaintiff in June, 2011. Defendants continued payment for full disability until July, 2013, and for partial disability until August, 2014, when they terminated benefits upon their finding that Plaintiff was fully able to return to work.

In January, 2015, Plaintiff moved to Nevada, and in February, 2015 she filed an appeal of Defendants' decision to terminate her benefits. Defendants denied her appeal, first in August, 2015, and again in May, 2016. Plaintiff then brought a claim against Defendants in the District Court for Clark County, Nevada, which was subsequently removed to the District Court of Nevada.

Defendants now request that this case be transferred to the District Court for the Southern District of New York, arguing that the subject matter of the case is more strongly connected to New

1 York, that New York law will apply, and that the convenience of the witnesses and parties would be
 2 better served by litigating the case in New York. Plaintiff opposes transfer, arguing that her choice
 3 of forum deserves deference, that the convenience of the parties favors Nevada, and that Nevada law 4 will apply.

5 II. Discussion

6 The Court has authority under 28 U.S.C. § 1404 to transfer a civil action “[f]or the 7 convenience of parties and witnesses, in the interest of justice” to any other district where it might 8 have been brought. District courts have broad discretion “to adjudicate motions for transfer 9 according to an individualized, case-by-case consideration of convenience and fairness.” Stewart
 10 Org., Inc. v. Ricoh Corp., 487 U.S. 22, 23 (1988) (See also Jones v. GNC Franchising, Inc., 211
 11 F.3d 495, 498 (9th Cir. 2000)). To determine whether a change of venue is warranted, the Court 12 considers “(1) the location where the relevant agreements were negotiated and executed, (2) the state 13 that is most familiar with the governing law, (3) the plaintiff’s choice of forum, (4) the respective 14 parties’ contacts with the forum, (5) the contacts relating to the plaintiff’s cause of action in the 15 chosen forum, (6) the differences in the costs of litigation in the two forums, (7) the availability of 16 compulsory process to compel attendance of unwilling non-party witnesses, and (8) the ease of 17 access to sources of proof.” Jones, 211 F.3d at 498.

18 Here, both parties concede that this action might have been brought in the Southern District
 19 of New York. (Mot. at 3, Resp. at 6). Therefore, the only remaining questions for the Court are 20 whether the convenience of the parties and witnesses would be served by transfer, and whether 21 transfer serves the interest of justice. The Court will consider the eight factors articulated in Jones to 22 answer these questions.

23 1. The location where the relevant agreements were negotiated and executed

24 Both parties concede that Plaintiff’s insurance policy was negotiated, executed and delivered 25 while she was living and working in New York. This factor weighs strongly in favor of transfer to 26 New York.

27 2. The state that is most familiar with the governing law

1 The parties agree that Nevada tends to follow the Restatement (Second) of Conflict of Laws
2 in determining choice-of-law questions involving insurance contracts. Under the Restatement, the 3 validity of a life insurance contract is generally determined by the local law of the state where the 4 insured was domiciled at the time the policy was applied for. Restatement (Second) of Conflicts of 5 Laws § 192 (1971). An exception to this generalization may be warranted when another state has a
6 more significant relationship to the transaction and the parties. Id. Here, both parties agree that 7 Plaintiff was domiciled in New York when the policy was executed.

8 However, because she was domiciled in Nevada when she filed her appeals, and when 9 Defendants ultimately denied those appeals, Plaintiff argues that Nevada has a more significant 10 relationship to the transaction and the parties than New York. Under this view, the exception noted 11 above might apply. Defendants respond that Plaintiff's claim arose upon termination of her benefits, 12 which occurred while she was still in New York, so her domicile at the time of the appeal is not 13 relevant.

14 The Court rejects Plaintiff's argument and finds that Nevada does not have a more significant 15 relationship to the transaction and the parties than New York. Plaintiff's claim is based upon 16 Defendants' denial of disability benefits, which first occurred while she was living in New York.
17 Plaintiff concedes that she moved to Nevada because she could no longer afford to live there after 18 Defendants denied her continuing benefits, suggesting that the harm which she seeks to redress
19 occurred when she was in New York. Plaintiff did file her appeal while living in Nevada, but the 20 denial of the appeal is not the pertinent harm, it is the denial of benefits, which occurred in New 21 York. Plaintiff does not provide any authority to show that her claim commenced at the date of her 22 appeal, or its denial.

23 Setting aside the date of appeal, the Court finds no significant connection between Nevada
24 and the transaction, only minimal contacts between Nevada and the Plaintiff, and no contacts 25 between Nevada and Defendants. It therefore appears that if this case were heard in Nevada, the 26 Court would apply New York law. Since New York courts are more familiar with New York law, 27 this factor weighs in support of transfer.

1 3. The plaintiff's choice of forum

2 As Plaintiff notes, a “defendant must make a strong showing of inconvenience to warrant
 3 upsetting the plaintiff’s choice of forum.” Decker Coal Co. V. Commonwealth Edison Co., 805 F.2d
 4 834, 843 (9th Cir. 1986). The Court’s determination of the forum’s convenience requires inquiry
 5 into the parties’ interests, as well as public factors, including where the claim arose. Id. Further, 6 “[i]f the operative facts have not occurred within the forum of original selection and that forum has 7 no particular interest in the parties or the subject matter, the plaintiff’s choice is entitled only to 8 minimal consideration.” Pac. Car & Foundry Co. v. Pence, 403 F.2d 949, 954 (9th Cir. 1968).
 9 Plaintiff asks the Court to distinguish Pac. Car & Foundry and another case cited by Defendant, In 10 re Galectin Therapeutics, Inc. Sec. Litig., 2015 WL 260881 (D. Nev. Jan. 21, 2015), because she, 11 unlike the plaintiffs in those cases, resides in the originally chosen forum state.

12 Here, Plaintiff’s connection to the chosen forum state is not so tenuous as in either Pac. Car 13 & Foundry, or In re Galectin Therapeutics. However, New York is much more closely connected to 14 this case than is Nevada. The events which constitute Plaintiff’s claim all occurred in New York. At 15 the time the claim arose, it does not appear that Nevada had any particular interest in the parties or 16 the subject matter. However, Plaintiff does currently reside in Nevada, which establishes at least 17 some interest in the outcome of the case for Nevada. The Court will therefore afford significant 18 deference to Plaintiff’s choice of forum. This factor weighs strongly against transfer to New York.

19 4. The respective parties’ contacts with the forum

20 Plaintiff and her current medical providers are located in Nevada. Defendants do not appear 21 to have any relevant contact with Nevada. This factor weights slightly against transfer to New York.

22 5. The contacts relating to the plaintiff’s cause of action in the chosen forum

23 Plaintiff argues that since her appeals were filed in here, Nevada has substantial contacts
 24 relating to the cause of action. However, as determined above, the appeal process was not what gave 25 rise to Plaintiff’s claim. Plaintiff’s current medical providers are the only Nevada contacts to the 26 operative facts in this case. In contrast, both parties have substantial relevant contacts with New 27 York. The events that precipitated the claim all occurred in New York. Plaintiff was a New York
 28

1 resident doing business with Defendants who were licensed and operating in New York. Except for 2 Plaintiff's current medical providers, it appears that most or all of the witnesses are in New York.
3 This factor weighs strongly in support of transfer to New York.

4 6. The differences in the costs of litigation in the two forums

5 Defendant argues that most of the witnesses in this case are in New York, a point which 6 Plaintiff does not contest. Plaintiff argues that the cost of litigation will be similar in either forum
7 because of the availability of video depositions, and that trial in this matter is unlikely. However,
8 Defendant does not concede the possibility of trial, and the Court is not willing to proceed on the 9 assumption that one will not be necessary. Further, the availability of video depositions cuts both 10 ways, making it possible to conduct discovery in either forum without the burden of travel. Given 11 the distances involved and the number of witnesses, it seems likely that many depositions will be 12 conducted remotely regardless of where this case is litigated. Ultimately, if this case proceeds to 13 trial, the cost of requiring a large number of witnesses to travel to Nevada would far outweigh the 14 costs of requiring a few to travel to New York. This factor weighs strongly in favor of transfer.

15 7. The availability of compulsory process to compel attendance of unwilling non-party 16 witnesses

17 Defendant provides a substantial list of non-party witnesses that will be unavailable for either 18 trial or deposition in Nevada. Plaintiff does not claim that any Nevada witnesses will be unable to 19 appear in New York. Rather, Plaintiff proposes to rely on video depositions of the New York
20 witnesses rather than compelling attendance in Nevada. In support, Plaintiff argues that the use of 21 video depositions is quite common, making the issue availability of compulsory process essentially 22 obsolete. None of the cases cited in support of this argument are controlling authority on this Court, 23 and regardless, it is not clear that they stand for the proposition that the availability of compulsory
24 process to compel attendance of non-party witnesses is an obsolete factor in the transfer analysis. It 25 appears that most of the witnesses in this case are located in New York and cannot be compelled to 26 appear in Nevada. This factor strongly supports transfer to New York.

27

1 8. The ease of access to sources of proof

2 Neither party suggests that any form of evidence other than witnesses will be more or less 3 accessible in either forum. This factor is neutral with regard to transfer.

4 III. Conclusion

5 Upon review of the Jones factors, the Court considered the deference owed to Plaintiff's 6 choice of forum, as well as the possibility of conducting depositions remotely, but finds that these 7 considerations are outweighed by the difficulties and expense of litigating the case in Nevada. The 8 Court finds that due to the stronger connection of the facts in this case to New York, and the location
9 of most of the witnesses in New York, transfer of this case would be more convenient for the parties
10 and witnesses, and would better serve the interest of justice.

11 IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that Defendants' motion to transfer venue (ECF No. 12) is 12 GRANTED. The Clerk of Court is directed to transfer this case to the Southern District of New 13 York.

14 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that all pending motions in this case are DENIED without 15 prejudice to their reassertion in the transferee forum.
